

DIAL YOUR OWN REDUCING DIET

BY DARLENE GEIS

■ THERE ARE literally hundreds of reducing diets. There's the protein diet, the liquid diet, the salt-free diet, etc., etc. But there's no assurance whatsoever that the diet that reduced Aunt Bessie to sylph-like proportions will do the same for you. No single diet is ideal for everyone. Diet requirements vary with size, age, working habits. Hence, the PAGEANT Diet Selector, which works for everyone. First, select one of the two wheels above, according to your sex. Next, look at the outside band of the wheel for your age and activity group

(whether you lead an active or a sedentary life). Then, select the number of pounds you want to lose. Finally, turn these pages until you find the diet, or combination of diets, indicated by number on the inner wheel. Easy? Only one more step is necessary: Stick to the diet! There is only one perfect diet for everyone, and that consists of nectar and ambrosia. Until you can qualify for that delightful combination, however, it is wise to shop shrewdly. Don't say, "this is for me," until you have made a considered choice from among the

1. THE LIQUID DIET

(Two-Day Rest Cure)

This diet is stringent—under 1,000 calories per day and no solid food. But after 48 hours you can go on to the next diet or call it quits, depending on the instructions given for your code number. In this diet, you treat your digestion tenderly for two days with nourishing liquid food, none of it fattening. Whenever you're hungry whip up one of the suggested drink snacks. Try to keep your day's total under 1,000 calories; the low calorie mixtures will help there. If you have an electric blender, mix the ingredients in it. They will be frothier and will seem to have more body. Otherwise, an ordinary egg-beater will do. Drink whatever you choose whenever you're hungry, as long as it's under 1,000 calories a day. You'll lose a few pounds and be in good shape to start your real dieting if that's not enough. Remember you can choose anything you want on this diet so long as you stop when you get near 1,000 calories.

Okay? Now dial your correct number, and watch those extra pounds disappear!

3. THE DU PONT DIET

(A Salt-Free Meat and Meat Fat Diet)

This is the diet worked out by the du Pont Company's Medical Division for its employees. It is a long-range diet for losing a great deal of weight over an extended period. You do not count calories, you need never feel hungry. But you must follow all the rules for best results. This is the diet that "burns off fat in the flame of fat meat."

1. You may not use any salt, sugar or flour. Season your food with pepper, paprika, celery seed, lemon or herbs.

2. You have to drink at least six glasses of water daily by dinner time. One glass should also contain the juice of $\frac{1}{2}$ lemon.

3. You should try to take a half hour walk before breakfast.

4. You must limit your sleep to 8 hours. In sleep, the body burns up its food less rapidly, so more sleep slows up the burning process and interferes with weight loss.

The diet itself is simply three meals a day, each composed of two courses.

The first course is always: $\frac{1}{2}$ pound or more of fresh (or frozen) meat. It must always be 1 part fat to 3 parts lean (roast beef, steak, lamb, pork, fish and poultry on occasion, with added fat).

The second course is any one of the following: Potatoes (white or sweet), rice, grapefruit, grapes, melon, banana, pear, berries. No second helpings.

Later, when you have lost what you wish to, you may have potato and fruit with each meal, and a daily serving of either carrot, corn, squash, lima beans or peas.

4. THE BASIC SEVEN DIET

5. THE FAMOUS CLINIC DIET

(High-Protein, High-Cholesterol Diet)

This is the diet recommended to many overweight patients of a famed medical clinic. It was worked out by their top doctors and nutritionists, and will have you dropping 20 pounds in two weeks if you play it strictly according to the rules. (This diet is not for people with high blood pressure, arterio-sclerosis or kidney ailments.)

1. Check with your doctor first to determine your best weight.

2. Follow menus exactly—no substitutions, no omissions.

3. Eat only lean parts of meat.

4. No butter or fats, no cream or sugar, bare minimum of salt.

5. Omit hard and soft drinks.

6. Repeat diet for second week, but stay on it only for two weeks.

Mixed fresh fruit salad

Bedtime: Yogurt or skim milk or buttermilk

7. THE DAILY DOZEN DIET

(A Pick-and-Choose Diet from a Restricted List)

Twelve categories to eat your way through daily—approximately 1,200 calories. A healthful diet which includes the protective foods, will not starve you and assures a steady weight loss. You must eat one thing from each category (or the complete category where no alternatives are given) once each day. Tick off each category once a day, and tick off the pounds just as simply.

1. Citrus Fruit (100 calories)

Grapefruit ($\frac{1}{2}$) or orange juice (small glass)

2. Fruits (non citrus, 150 calories)

Fresh fruit (melon or fresh berries)

3. Bread (120 calories)

Melba toast (2 slices 3 times a day) or whole grain bread (1 thin slice 3 times a day)

4. Milk (264 calories)

Skim milk or buttermilk (3 cups a day)
Black coffee or tea with meals

5. Cheese (60 calories)

Cottage cheese (1 tablespoonful 3 times a day)

6. Eggs (70 calories)

1 egg boiled or poached

7. Meat, Poultry, Fish or Seafood (200 calories)

2 lean servings of beef, veal, pork, chicken, turkey, fish or seafood (liver once a week)

8. White Potatoes (50 calories)

$\frac{1}{2}$ medium potato, no butter or gravy

9. Yellow Vegetables (50 calories)

$\frac{1}{2}$ cupful (no butter, little salt, season with parsley, chives, herbs or lemon)

10. Green Vegetables (40 calories)

$\frac{1}{2}$ cupful, season as above

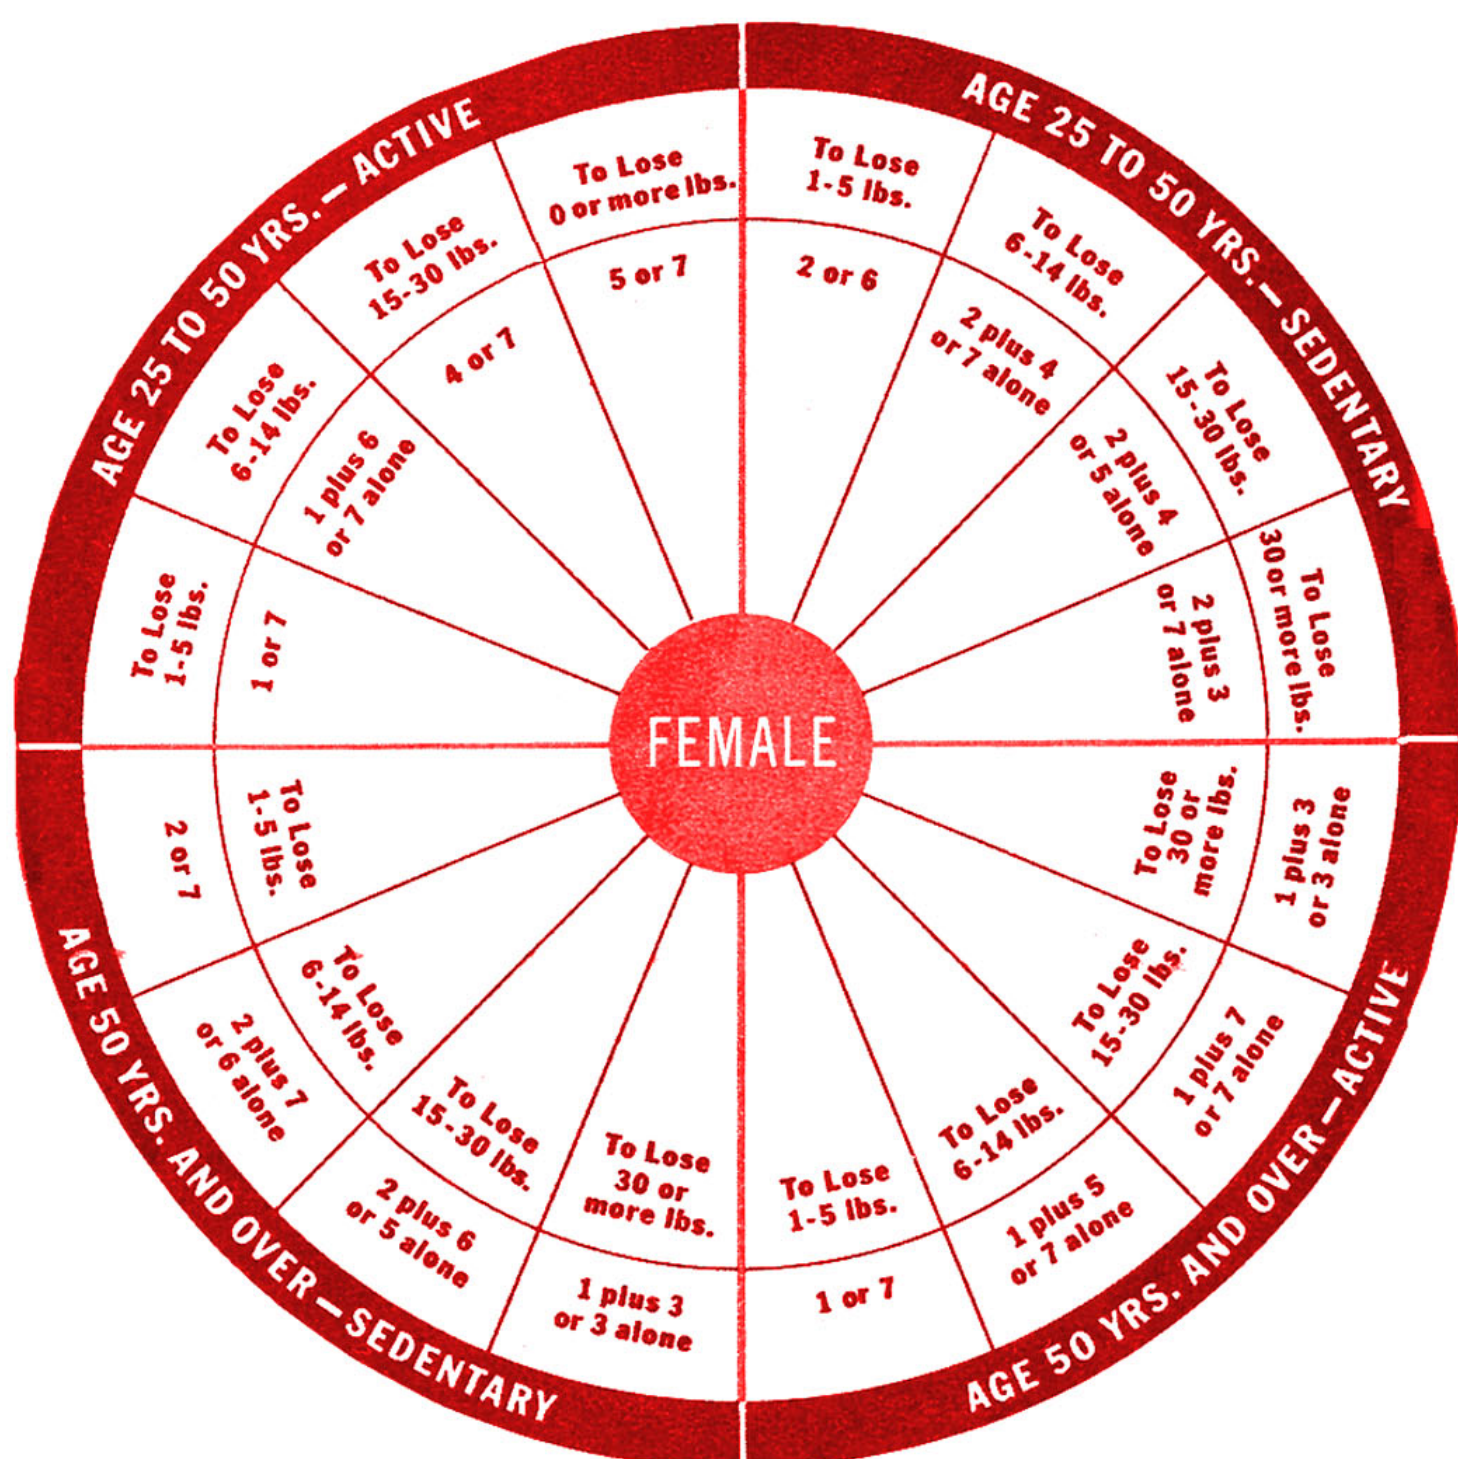

11. Vegetables (other than green or yellow, 50 calories)

$\frac{1}{2}$ cupful, season as above

12. Green Salads (20 calories)

Large serving, dress with vinegar or lemon and herbs
