

The Stars and Stripes

FRANCE, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1918.

PEOPLE WE'D LIKE TO MEET

The composer who wrote the Reveille call.

The contractor who made those field shoes.

The packer who concocted that "canned Willy."

The dealer who supplied that storage battery for our non-lightable flashlight.

The underwear manufacturer who left the sheep burrs in those pants.

The outfitter who tied those knots in the toes of those socks.

The rubber goods dealer who used a sieve instead of a sole for those boots.

The hat maker who made all those new chapeaux of the uniform size of 9.

The button manufacturer who made all those buttons out of pasteboard.

The uniform maker who sewed all those buttons on with invisible thread.

The guy who told us that "dubbin" was good for shoes.

The girl who told us we'd never stand any chance with her unless we enlisted.
