But Does Germany Know It's Licked?

There Still Are Murder, Plunder, Treachery and Arrogance

By Ernest Crown

The German Army has been defeated, but the German murderers are still murderers, the Junkers are still Junkers, and they are all still Nazis—and all of them are looking ahead to the next war.

Propaganda?

Here is what the Germans, whose commanders begged for mercy at the signing of the surrender, did in the 24 hours just before and after the formal deadline for capitulation: In its last communique, broadcast from Flensburg on the Danish border several hours after the deadline, the German High Command announced the award of one of the highest military orders to the commander of the 7th Division. The reason: his troops in East Prussia "even yesterday (Tuesday) gallantly defended to the very last" the mouth of the Vistula and surrounding territory. In recognition of the "exemplary gallantry of his soldiers" (in killing Russian soldiers to the very end) the general got diamonds to the oak leaves with swords to the Knight's Cross of the Iron Cross. ¶ And this is how the same communique talked of the crushing of German fascism's military might:

"This struggle brought us great victories, but also heavy defeats. In the end the German Wehrmacht succumbed with honor to enormous superiority . . . The unique performance of the front and homeland will find a final appraisal in the later just, judgment of history. Every soldier therefore . . . may set to work in these gravest hours of our history with courage and confidence to safeguard the undying life of our people."

¶This is German honor: More than six hours after the midnight surrender deadline, German planes bombed Prague yesterday. Other planes were reported by Prague radio to be constantly bombing the city of Melnik, 18 miles north of the Czechoslovak capital, hitting, among other targets, the Melnik hospital. mere bandits-"are murdering and robbing the peaceful inhabitants," the Czech radio said, in urgent appeal for Allied help. Prague, itself, was completely liberated by the Red Army, which came to the aid of the patriot fighters yesterday. And last night, in his victory message to the Russian people, Stalin himself announced that some German troops were "evading capitulation" in Czechoslovakia. A midnight Soviet communique said the German Armies in Czechoslovakia still were running from the Red Army.

¶ In Berlin, Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel appeared for the signing of the final surrender wearing "The Order of Blood" or golden Nazi Party emblem which Hitler had conferred on all his field generals. In the opinion of a British General quoted by Matthew Halton of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. "Keitel is saying, 'I come here as a Nazi as well as a Prussian.'" An American officer murmured: "Keitel is still Prussia, he isn't finished, he's just taking a rest."

Moscow finally let loose with its great victory celebration yesterday and last night. A thousand guns boomed 30 times, the greatest salute of the war in Moscow, and 324 guns fired another 24 salvoes to mark the liberation of Prague.

But even while Moscow was celebrating, it was warned by Lt. Gen.

Euege Feodorov in a broadcast: "Victory is won but the struggle against German Fascism is not over. The Nazis are going underground. They're carrying on their campaign.

The Nazis are, and will go on, voicing their aims through their friends and protectors. Their aim is clear, to bring about a split in our camp of United Nations."

Stalin himself proclaimed in a speech to his people:

"The great patriotic war has ended with our complete victory. The period of war in Europe has ended. The period of peaceful development has begun."

One phrase of Stalin's is worth notice: "Russia is celebrating victory, although it does not intend to dismember or to exterminate Germany." Robert Reuben, Reuter correspondent who went into the Russian zone, tells how the Russians are trying to make human beings out of barbarians:

"The Russian policy is one of stern retribution, but their emphasis is on fairness and in the occupied cities the Germans are allowed to elect their own mayors to serve with appointed officials of the Soviet Military Government. By contrast, in territory occupied by the Western Allies a German mayor is appointed by the Military Government. In most cities held by the Soviet Army the entire populace is rounded up indiscriminately and required to clean up the wreckage."
