Honors to Susan B. Anthony. The centenary of Susan B. Anthony, born Feb. 15, 1820, was widely celebrated by suffragists in both the United States and foreign countries. At the time of Miss Anthony's birth no state in the Union and no foreign country allowed women to vote. At the present time 21 foreign countries have given women full suffrage, while in this country 17,000,000 women may vote for president and 7,000,000 for congress. Miss Anthony's well-known prophecy was that American women would vote in 1920. As a Quaker and a teacher Miss Anthony became interested in the temperance movement and was elected to a convention. When she arose to speak she was advised by the chairman that women should sit and listen and learn. She left the convention with the other women delegates, and a woman's union was organized. She began her "woman's rights" activity in 1848 in the convention—the first of its kind—held at Seneca Falls, N. Y. She was arrested for trying to vote at Rochester, N. Y., in 1872—the first arrest for the cause. She drafted the pending amendment to the constitution in 1875.
